Excerpt: . 14th, as we could have no trains with us. This ends this chapter and closes our fighting period. The following, received too late for its proper place in the chapter, is too important to be omitted, as it gives the most correct estimate of Hood s force. It is from the National Tribune, contributed by William E. Doyle, Stevensburg, Va., and describes the battle of Franklin. He says: The main portion of the battle was one terrible rush of the entire rebel army to overwhelm the inferior numbers opposed to them. It was like the flank attack on Sherman on the preceding 22d of July. Hood believed in these reckless charges of masses of men to overwhelm the enemy, but failed against the western troops, who reduced his troops from 85,000 at the beginning of the campaign to about 40,000 at Franklin. Of this number not...
