Shortly after this, Mr. Lincoln, for the first time in his life, allowed his beard to grow all over his face, with the exception of the upper lip; and this fashion he continued as long as he lived. In speaking of the incident which led him to wear a full beard, he afterward remarked, reflectively, How small a thing will sometimes change the whole aspect of our lives! That Mr. Lincoln realized that an improvement was necessary in his personal appearance is evidenced by many amusing stories told by him. The one he especially enjoyed telling was, how once, when riding the circuit, he was accosted in the cars by a stranger, who said, Excuse me, sir, but I have an article in my possession which belongs to you. How is that? Mr. Lincoln asked, much astonished. The stranger took a knife from his pocket, saying, This knife was placed in my hands some years ago with the injunction that I was to keep it until I found a man uglier than myself. I have carried it from that time to this. Allow me now to say, sir, that I think you are fairly entitled to the property. Mr. Carpenter, the artist who painted the picture of The Proclamation of Emancipation, tells in his book 160 of an incident which occurred the day following the adjournment of the Baltimore Convention: Various political organizations called to pay their respects to the President. While the Philadelphia delegation was being presented, the chairman of that body, in introducing one of the members, said: Mr. President, this is Mr. S. of the second district of...
